To Whom It May Concern:

Every business has people that are instrumental in their success. In 2001 I started my business in landscape maintenance. I had worked in landscape maintenance when I was younger and decided that I wanted to return to this field. In my youth I had worked in Las Vegas, Nevada and I was now in Grand Junction, Colorado a different climate zone with different soils, plants and problems. There were a thousand questions and few answers to my customer's problems. I had heard about the master gardener program and decided to enroll. This was the smartest move I could have ever made. With the guidance and direction of Curtis Swift and Susan Rose I was able to diagnose and treat plant and turf problems correctly. Instead of questions I had answers and the ability to keep in touch with the extension for further guidance and instruction. When I go onto a property pointing out problems is second nature and as you know people want the guy with answers not questions. I have never had the need to advertise because the word of mouth business is so strong. The customer wants answers and the extension has been my solution I owe my success to these fine folks. I was able to purchase a building and fenced yard this year, a thing that is pretty uncommon in my business. You know a guy equipped with an education from the county extension has done pretty well. Thank you Curtis, Susan and Bob Hammond for all that you have meant to my business, keep up the good work.

Sincerely yours,
